The difficulties in the way of the trade from Bhamo, we are told, are being gradually done away with. The Flotilla Company's steamers have for several years past been plying regularly to Bhamo, the exactions of the Burmese officials are a thing of the past, and the various Highland chieftsins beyond Bhamo are being brought gradually to at least moderate their blackmail. And it is with the Tonkin and West River routes that we in this Colony are mainly concerned. Both routes serve the trade of Hongkong, and there is no particular reason why we should prefer the one to the other so long as a fair field and no favour is granted. What is desired is to reach the consuming markets as cheaply as possible, and if the French can offer advantages in this direction, so much the better for trade. Sir GEORGE BOWEN, in despatch to Lord DERBY, reprinted in "Fifty Years of Colonial Government," speaking of a visit of the Captain of the Kersaint to Government House, says :- "Count DE. and BEAUMONT, and all the other Frenchmen with whom I have conversed late, concur in the admission of their countrymen, M. du CAILLAUD (in his recently published work, 'Histoire de l'Intervention Française au Tongking') to the effect that English and not French commerce. that the trade of Hongkong and not the trade of Saigon, will really profit by French conquests in the Indo-Chinese peninsu-

Presently I said to him encouragingly: "Well, now, what is 'invention eh?" Picture my amazement when heard the boy falter out, "Please, sir, it is either a little boy or a little girl!". I could not be in any way vexed with the lad, because I felt that he had bravely given me this apparently irrelevant answer rather than not try at all. Little did I suspect at the time that the scholar's reply was really a thoughtful one and the plain expression of a fairly logical inference. A little later in the lesson I turned to the boy and said: " Now, let us know, ----, why you answered that the word 'invention' stood for either male or female." 'Why, sir," the scholar responded "I have read, or else have been told, that necessity is the mother of invention, and so I thought that it was sure to be either a boy or else a girl.

Travelling to a friend's house one night, the ate Martin Farquhar Tupper lost his portmant an. He complained of this so loudly at dinner that one of the guests expressed his diseatisfacp' in if you had lost your portmanteau ?" said "tupper.—"I should, Mr. Tupper," replied the other, "as I am an ordinary mortal. But you Mr. Tupper-your philosophy is proverbial."

The well-known American statesman and orator, Mr. Chauncey Depew, tells the following story:— In the Berkshire Hills there was a forers!, and as they gathered in the, little par-lour there came the typical New England female, who mingles curiosity with her sympathy, and, as ahe glanced around the darkened room, she Bunkssaid to the bereaved widow: 'Where did you get that new eight-day clock?' We ain't got no new eight-day clock, was the reply. You ain't? What's that in the corner here? Why, no, that's not an eight-day clock, that's the deceased: we stood him on end to make room for the

The huge number of synonyms for money illustrates remarkably well the variety of sources from which our slang words are recruited, and the remarkable appositeness of some of them. Gordon & Co., A. A well-known litterateur and famous whistplayer has just returned from Paris full of admiration for the admirable way in which M. Renan plays "the king of card games." He is never tired of telling his friends at the Athenoum of the rabbers he played whilst in Paris with M Bensu'as one of his opponents, and speaks of the memory of the author of the "Life of Jesus" as being "predigious," Like Sarah Battle, too. M. Renan when playing whist insists on the rigour of the game," though he strongly insists that a rubber is the best form of mental recreation a literary man can go in for. He invariably plays for small points only, and is, as he ought to be, a most philosophical loser.

The son of John Jacob Astor has proposed to erect an enduring monument of his father in Trinity Church, New York, in the shape of brouze doors which will cost about a hundred thousand dollars. These are to be placed at the main entrance on Broadway, at the head of Wallstreet, and at the supplementary entrances on the north and south sides of the have of the church.: They will be massive and imposing and as art productions are expected to surpass anything known in America. Their designing has been entrusted to one of the leading architects: of New Yoak. It is expected that in their chief features they will follow in a measure the portals of the famous baptistary in Florence, in which scenes from the life of Christ are represented.

In Barou de Malortie's " 'Twint Old Times and New," he relates the following story :- A certain Baron X boasted that he would make the acquaintance of a well-known Frankfurt notress, and to introduce himself wrote the follow- Steamship Coys .ing letter : " Baron X can find no words eloquent enough to express his admiration, a little souvenir must be his interpreter; but not knowing if Mille. Cabotina prefers rubies, emeralds. or tourquoises, the Beron takes the liberty of ending three bracelets, and will give himself the pleasure of calling at two o'clock-to hear which of the three has the good fortune to carry off the palm." The lady's answer was short and to the purpose of As I like brac lets equally I shall keep them all three, and Baron X need, therefore, not trouble himself to call persoually.—Augelia Cabotina." Augelina deserves to get on.

To the weary list of abstract questions which people ask one another has now been added. "Is immoral to touch up a photograph?" "Immoral" is a large word to apply to a small thing; but Mr. Alfred Paterson, who has started the discussion in the Photographic Quarterly, is an austere morahet. Still Mr. Paterson is man of the world enough to perceive that, if portraits were not touched up photographers would speedily bave nothing to do. We go to the pho ographer not to have our portraits taken, Thermom. 4 P.M ... 79 but to be invested with artistic merit. No woman, however handsome, objects to being made even more seductive by the art of the photographer; while the vanity of the good-looking man is notorious: The photographer who fulls to make a pretty picture is either a bungler or a dealer in displeasing veracities; and in either case he may as well put up the shutters at once.

The other day M. Mashkov, the semi-political representative of the Novoe Vremue at the Court of King Menelek returned to St. Petersburg. We now hear from Diebuth, the next station to Obok on the road to Abyssinia, of a small expedition of three, led by M. Kargopoloy. This enterprising traveller started from Tashkent early in October, and having crossed by sea from Usun-Ada to Bafrush (the Persian landing-place in the Caspian), proceeded right through Persia to Bender Bushirs on the Hulf In order to reach Aden, M. Kargopolov and his companions Force of wind...... had first to sail for Bombsy, where they were detained by the police for a fortnight, and questioned on their business in Per in After this disagre-able adventure, their reception in Obok | by the French authorities formed a delightful contrast. Madamo Tsobebrikova has not been released but has been transported to Penza, in the Caucasus, and placed there under strict police surveillance. She has been conveyed (says the Vieuna correspondent of the Times) to her destination in a kibitka or collular carriage without windows, and under an escort of gendarmes, rapidly driven over bad roads, and with no halts except in the open country, where there was no ing to afford her a few hour's rest; she has been abominably: fed, and denied all companionship: The transportation of the bigh-spirited lady who dered to tell Alexander III. the truth about the condition of his Empire seems to have been accomplished under every conceivable condition of bardship. It may be that the Czar intended to release Madame Tschebrikova, but autocrates lave but little effective power over the barenarcrate who govern in their names. The details as to Madame Tacketrikova's transportion having been quickly communicated to the correspondent on unimpeschable evidence is a fact proving what active and watchful forces are at work to counteract the system of corruption. cruelty, and misrale which the bureaucracy is Effects the insertion of Advertisements in all

INPERIAL QUARTO. ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late wears: been compelled to coin to express the numerous onjects in machinery, photography, felegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are hore given in extense. Each and every word is of NATIVE TYPES, copies of which are obtainable fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby affecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :--Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English rords, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese charactors. Again, despite all the grammars and [745] other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherte pubrespectfully informed that, if upon their. For practical purposes the arrangement of arrival in this Harbour, none of the Company's | the work is so complete, that a reference to its understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-It comprises upwards of two thousand large - 4 Vols. IMPERIAL QUARTO, Price, $20. A Large REDUCTION in PRICE is made
